A young adviser to resign can take responsibility for the new party

The new political party is set to debut in the second half of February with the initiative of the anti -discrimination student movement and the National Citizens Committee. A young adviser to the interim government can resign and take responsibility for the new party. The top level leaders of the anti -discrimination student movement and the National Citizens Committee say the new party will ideally be moderate. They have received several proposals on what will be the name of the party. However, no name has been finalized yet. What will be the symbol of the party is also being discussed.

Multiple sources of the National Citizens Committee say that according to the initial discussion, one of the three advisors (Mahfuz Alam, Nahid Islam and Asif Mahmud) as representatives of the students in the interim government will resign. The other two can resign at a convenient time and join the team. One of the duo may leave the adviser in June and join the squad.

When asked, National Citizens Committee Member Secretary Akhtar Hossain told the first light on Sunday evening that the formal announcement of their political party would come at the end of February. The party will do politics as a moderate party, emphasizing the issues of national interest beyond the right and left. Was in favor of mass uprising; But they want to bring such people to a new party - not associated with any party politics.

Akhtar Hossain said the party's name, leadership, specific date of debut or where and how to announce their debut will be announced. "We are trying to verify public opinion with the top leadership," he said. The names of the student advisers in the Advisory Council of the Interim Government are in the discussion in this regard. However, it has not yet been finalized. Again, if they resign, there is also discussion of how the students will represent the government.
